Do you have professional experience of working with people who hoard?

Call for participants in a psychological research study on hoarding:

* Do you work in a professional capacity with people who hoard? (e.g. as a professional organiser, psychotherapist, clinical psychologist?)

* Have you had recent experience (within the last 12 months) of working with at least one person with hoarding difficulties?

If you can answer Yes to both of these questions, I am inviting you to participate in an interview about your professional role with people who hoard, your views on how hoarding behaviours develop, and your views about interventions for people who hoard. The interview can be face to face at a venue of your choice, over Skype or over the phone and will take approximately 60-90 minutes.
